

ANCC FOUNDATION Did You Know?

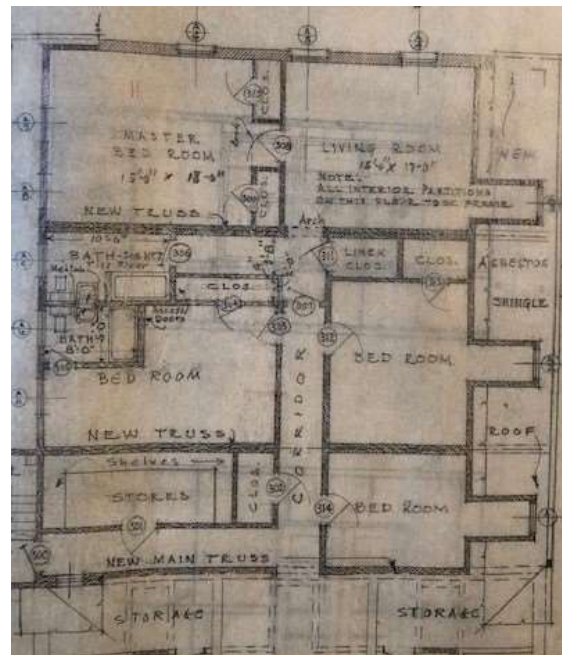

Manager's Apartment

The third floor of the old Arlington Clubhouse included an apartment that until 1970 was the residence of the Club General Manager. When Joe Sims was hired as the General Manager in February 1970¹, apparently a condition of his accepting the position was that he and his family would not be required to reside in the Clubhouse apartment.

The apartment, which went through several configurations over the years, was quite spacious. The configuration shown includes four bedrooms, two bathrooms, a living room, and lots of storage. However, it did not include a kitchen or a dining room, as the family was presumably either fed by the Club or used the Club's kitchen.

The above picture shows the three dormers that were integral to the apartment.

From architect (and member) George Daidy's Drawing #5 dated January 1939

¹ Minutes of the Executive Committee Special Meeting of February 28, 1970